Ellen,

I received the following email from the Bellefonte licensing project manager. The remains are housed at the University of Alabama. Cultural affiliation has not been determined. See email below from Andrew Sterdis.

John--
Following is the information we discussed yesterday regarding BLN site archaeology.

We have checked our NAGPRA database and confirmed that the 9 burials excavated from 1JA300 are currently being curated at the University of Alabama. They have not been culturally affiliated. The regulations for how Federal Agencies must deal with Culturally Unidentifiable remain have not been finalized. Additional information from these burials can be found in the excavation report.

As I indicated to you on the phone this morning the reports are massive and we will be transmitting a CD containing the reports via Fed Ex today. If there are any follow on questions, please do not hesitate to contact me.

Thanks,
Andrea
