Per my discussion with Randy a few moments ago, we will go with the catered lunches. Although they would be somewhat more expensive, that approach will use up less of our time. The catered lunches could cost between $9 and $12 per day, but Randy is trying to negotiate a deal to keep their cost at no more than $10 per day.

I am awaiting Randy's reply on the approximate cost of the cafeteria vs. catered food, although my inclination is to go with the catered food and with the variety Laura suggests.

I already included a request for special dietary requirements in my Fermi 3 Site Audit Announcement email

Randy,

Something similar to the Fermi Pre-app lunches we had at Black & Vetch would be perfect. I think bringing in some boxed lunches would be fine. If possible, let's try to have some variety. Sandwiches everyday for 5 days is a bit much. But overall I think a variety of catered food is best. Steve can you send out an email to all the NRC and contractor reviewers to see if we have any special requests (vegetarians etc.)

Thanks
Laura

Steve,

Having everyone buy their lunch would be cheaper but having it catered would probably be quicker, more convenient and keep things rolling.

Randy,

Giving you the attendee names (to the extent I know them at this stage) and other information is on my list to provide to you very soon. Laura is working the schedule/agenda, for discussion with you and Argonne this week.

As for lunches, either option would be fine with me, but I believe we would prefer whatever would take the least amount of time and money. Which option would that be?

Also, if you provide morning snacks, they should be similar to what we had at the alternative sites visit (i.e., coffee, tea, water donuts). We probably also need extra waters to take along on the site tours.

Thanks,

Steve,

Do you have a list of names with their organizations and specialty areas for NRC, Argonne

ERI? Also a list of names of who will be attending from various government agencies--I realize you may not have this nailed down yet, but a even a guess of numbers would help. I need to finalize total numbers so I can figure out and reserve transportation and lunches. Numbers going on specialty tours would also be very helpful.

I think we talked about catering lunches and then NRC and Argonne could just chip in. The alternative is that our corporate offices has a good lunch area. Everyone could just get their own. What ever you prefer.

Is it possible to find out which disciplines may need to be available until Saturday?

Randy,

We are still a bit up in the air regarding our arrival and departure dates. I do believe that most of us will arrive on Sunday night (February 1) and start the audit first thing on Monday morning. As for the departure date, we had originally planned for the afternoon of Friday, February 6. However, Mike Masnik won't be arriving until Wednesday noon at best, so we may need for him and some others to continue working through Friday and possibly into Saturday. For now, I would suggest that we prepare for the worst case.

Thanks,

Steve,

I noticed that for Levy County's Environmental Audit schedule, the NRC was traveling on Monday and the audit started on Tuesday. What are your plans? Are you arriving Sunday night, Feb. 1 or are you traveling on Monday? Also, on Friday February 6, do you plan to wrap up the audit by noon, so people have time to catch flights out?

Thanks,
