The former, right!

Thank you, Laura. Just so I am clear, this would be a quarter of a mile on either side of the center line of the transmission corridor? Or would the total width of the survey be a quarter of a mile? I am assuming it is the former, but I want to be absolutely sure. It could also be a quarter of a mile from the either edge of the corridor (rather than the center of the corridor).

Please let me know and we will put the maps together. Thanks, again.

Sara,
We discussed amongst ourselves here and think that a 1/4 mile APE for the lines should be fine. Only in an urban area would that possibly change and be dependant on the resource type.
Any questions, please contact me.
Sincerely,
Laura

Laura - See the attached for the specifications of the transmission lines as we know them today. It appears the heights will range from 110 to 195 feet. Will the half mile APE we discussed for the architectural survey suffice for a 195 foot structure?

Call me any time at the phone number below. Thank you for your time.
