When the V. C. Summer plant was first built, SCE & G forced many property owners along the Broad River, under threat of condemnation, to sell their property. SCE & G's reasoning was that these properties would be flooded when the plant was built. Many of the deeds from these property owners to SCE & G even have the wording that the property owners giving up their property would be "guaranteed access to the water at all times." Many of these properties were as far as 12 miles north of the actual plant. The reality since the plant was built is that these properties are not flooded and flooding is actually not as much of a problem as before the plant was built. These properties now are nothing but hunting club properties for employees, executives and guests of SCE & G. SCE & G has also made large profits from the harvesting of timber on these properties – profits that would rightfully have been made by the landowners if they had not been forced to sell their land.

Are there any plans to rectify this situation and compensate these land owners by returning the properties to these owners or their heirs?
