I think the main thing I want to accomplish is good documentation of the staff decision.

Bob, your comments are on target. Commitments are NOT enforceable.

EX 5

(b)(5)

Commitments are proposed by the licensee in their LR Application. During the Application review and approval process, the licensee will revise and add additional commitments, in response to NRC questions (RAIs, regional inspection, ACRS). When the SER is written, the list of commitments, from the licensee's Application is cut & pasted into the SER. Short of a supplemental SER (as in the case of OC), there is no mechanism for the NRC to change a specific license renewal commitment.

beyond commitments, if a state feels that a safety issue has not been adequately addressed by a licensee, they ought to provide a 2.206 petition/request.

Guess I wouldn't mind a little tutorial on the same information.

An insight as to where the State of NJ may be headed, regarding the current OC drywell coating issue.

Yesterday, during the day, Rich Pinney asked about how the NRC would change a "commitment" if Exelon needed to do more than a current commitment required. We talked, in general, about commitment management, SERs, enforceability, and what might constitute a violation of a requirement.

Rich didn't really have much to say, but he seemed to believe the NRC could "enforce" commitments, and could [or should be able to] change commitments and require a licensee to implement a new commitment.

During the 4 pm telecom with Exelon, near the end, Rich showed me a note that he'd written. "Increase sand bed inspections to every 2 years." The current commitment is to inspect the drywell shell, in the sand bed bays, every other outage [every 4 years].

I'll update if more comes to light.
