The INS Office of Business Liaison (OBL) provides information to contractors to help them understand the employment eligibility verification process for non-US citizens. This information can be found on the INS website, http://www.ins.usdoj.gov/graphics/services/employerinfo/index.htm#obl.

The NRC reserves the right to deny or withdraw Contractor use or access to NRC facilities or its equipment/services, and/or take any number of contract administrative actions (e.g., disallow costs, terminate for cause) should the Contractor violate the Contractor's responsibility under this clause.

C.5 WHISTLEBLOWER PROTECTION FOR NRC CONTRACTOR AND SUBCONTRACTOR EMPLOYEES (JULY 2006)

(a) The U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC) contractor and its subcontractor are subject to the Whistleblower Employee Protection public law provisions as codified at 42 U.S.C. 5851. NRC contractor(s) and subcontractor(s) shall comply with the requirements of this Whistleblower Employee Protection law, and the implementing regulations of the NRC and the Department of Labor (DOL). See, for example, DOL Procedures on Handling Complaints at 29 C.F.R. Part 24 concerning the employer obligations, prohibited acts, DOL procedures and the requirement for prominent posting of notice of Employee Rights at Appendix A to Part 24.

Section C

C.6 SECTION 508 COMPLIANCE

All electronic and information technology (EIT) procured through this contract must meet the applicable accessibility standards at 36 CFR 1194, unless an agency exception to this requirement exists. (36 CFR 1194 implements Section 508 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, as amended, and is viewable at: http://www.accessboard.gov/sec508/standards.htm)

The following standards have been determined to be applicable to this contract:

Section 1194.21 Software Applications and Operating Systems - Detail Voluntary Product Accessibility Template
Criteria	Supporting Features	Remarks and explanations
(a) When software is designed to run on a system that has a keyboard, product functions shall be executable from a keyboard where the function itself or the result of performing a function can be discerned textually.	Partially supported	It is possible to execute most product functionality from a keyboard however not all function results are represented textually.
(b) Applications shall not disrupt or disable activated features of other products that are identified as accessibility features, where those features are developed and documented according to industry standards. Applications also shall not disrupt or disable activated features of any operating system that are identified as accessibility features where the application programming interface for those accessibility features has been documented by the manufacturer of the operating system and is available to the product developer.	Supported	The user interfaces do not attempt to disrupt or disable accessibility features of other products or the operating system.
(c) A well-defined on-screen indication of the current focus shall be provided that moves among interactive interface elements as the input focus changes. The focus shall be programmatically exposed so that Assistive Technology can track focus and focus changes.	Partially supported	Well-defined on-screen indications of focus are provided in some cases but not all. The screen focus is not programmatically exposed.
(d) Sufficient information about a user interface element including the identity, operation and	Not supported	Information about user interface elements

state of the element shall be available to Assistive Technology. When an image represents a program element, the information conveyed by the image must also be available in text.		(such as identity, operation and state) is not available to Assistive Technology. Information about images is not always conveyed by text.
(e) When bitmap images are used to identify controls, status indicators, or other programmatic elements, the meaning assigned to those images shall be consistent throughout an application's performance.	Supported	Images identifying user interface elements are generally used consistently throughout the product. Any inconsistencies would be considered a bug.
(f) Textual information shall be provided through operating system functions for displaying text. The minimum information that shall be made available is text content, text input caret location, and text attributes.	Partially supported	Textual information is provided through operating system functions using the Windows graphics device interface API. The software does not make extensive use of text attributes.
(g) Applications shall not override user selected contrast and color selections and other individual display attributes.	Partially supported	The software has its own user-configurable color settings (e.g. background color and foreground color), and does not always respect the color/contrast/display attribute settings specified at the operating system level by the user.
(h) When animation is displayed, the information shall be displayable in at least one non-animated presentation mode at the option of the user.	Supported	Where animation is used in the software users can pause the animation.
(i) Color coding shall not be used as the only means of conveying information, indicating an action, prompting a response, or distinguishing a visual element.	Partially supported	The majority of visual information that is color-coded can also be derived by looking at other information and attributes, but OPNET has not extensively tested all aspects of software to know for sure.
(j) When a product permits a user to adjust color and contrast settings, a variety of color	Supported	Standard/common color options for color and selections capable of producing a range of contrast levels shall be provided.		contrast settings with a wide range of selectable values are provided.

(k) Software shall not use flashing or blinking text, objects, or other elements having a flash or blink frequency greater than 2 Hz and lower than 55 Hz.	Supported	Software does not generate flashing text or objects other than the secondary effects of updating screen displays. The frequency of these updates is determined by CPU speed and processing rate as opposed to any specific hard-coded display frequency.
(I) When electronic forms are used, the form shall allow people using Assistive Technology to access the information, field elements, and functionality required for completion and submission of the form, including all directions and cues.	Not supported	Where the software uses forms, they are not accessible to most standard Windowsbased Assistive Technology applications.

Section 1194.22 Web-based Internet information and applications - Detail Voluntary Product Accessibility Template
Criteria	Supporting Features	Remarks and explanations
(a) A text equivalent for every non-text element shall be provided (e.g., via "alt", "longdesc", or in element content).	Partially supported	Certain reports generated in web form contain embedded graphic images which are graphs or charts. These do not lend themselves to any textual description. However, many reports contain textual executive summaries which summarize high- level concepts presented within the reports, with the graphical information containing detailed and supporting information that is not provided in textual form.
(b) Equivalent alternatives for any multimedia presentation shall be synchronized with the	N/A	The software does not produce web pages presentation.		containing multimedia presentations.

(c) Web pages shall be designed so that all information conveyed with color is also available without color, for example from context or markup.	Partially supported	Aside from embedded graphics which contain graphs and charts where color is used, most other report content is textual in nature and color is not the only method of conveying information.
(d) Documents shall be organized so they are readable without requiring an associated style sheet.	Supported	Web documents are generated using style sheets. Once generated, they do not require associated style sheets to be readable.
(e) Redundant text links shall be provided for each active region of a server-side image map.	N/A	Web reports are generated as static files; OPNET applications do not serve pages via active web servers.
(f) Client-side image maps shall be provided instead of server-side image maps except where the regions cannot be defined with an available geometric shape.	N/A	Web reports are generated as static files; OPNET applications do not serve pages via active web servers.
(g) Row and column headers shall be identified for data tables.	Supported	This is common practice for OPNET reports.
(h) Markup shall be used to associate data cells and header cells for data tables that have two or more logical levels of row or column headers.	Not supported	Tabular presentations use do not use scope attributes in their markup.
(i) Frames shall be titled with text that facilitates frame identification and navigation	Supported	Frames typically have identifying title and placement which makes it easy to determine their content and purpose.
(j) Pages shall be designed to avoid causing the screen to flicker with a frequency greater than 2 Hz and lower than 55 Hz.	Supported.	Reports do not make use of flashing text or animation.
(k) A text-only page, with equivalent information or functionality, shall be provided to make a web site comply with the provisions of this part, when compliance cannot be accomplished in any other way. The content of the text-only page	N/A	The product does not generate live web data (like a web site); all web content is strictly through generated shall be updated whenever the primary page changes.		HTML reports.

(I) When pages utilize scripting languages to display content, or to create interface elements, the information provided by the script shall be identified with functional text that can be read by Assistive Technology.	Not supported
(m) When a web page requires that an applet, plug-in or other application be present on the client system to interpret page content, the page must provide a link to a plug-in or applet that complies with §1194.21(a) through (l).	Supported	Web pages only require JavaScript which is part of the standard web browser, no additional applications are required.
(n) When electronic forms are designed to be completed on-line, the form shall allow people using Assistive Technology to access the information, field elements, and functionality required for completion and submission of the form, including all directions and cues.	N/A	Web-based data is all report output and does not require user input.
(o) A method shall be provided that permits users to skip repetitive navigation links.	Supported	Web pages contain various shortcut links to skip repetitive navigation.
(p) When a timed response is required, the user shall be alerted and given sufficient time to indicate more time is required.	N/A	Web-based data is for report presentation only, no user input is required.

The contractor shall not be held liable for full compliance on partially supported standards per the explanations and remarks in the above tables.

The standards do not require the installation of specific accessibility-related software or the attachment of an assistive technology device, but merely require that the EIT be compatible with such software and devices so that it can be made accessible, without significant alteration, if so required by the NRC in the future.

Within five (5) days of product delivery, the Contractor shall denote, in a comprehensive specific list, all offered EIT products (supplies and services) that fully comply with Section 508, with full details and evidence or verification of compliance. The Contractor shall ensure that all EIT products that are less than fully compliant are offered pursuant to extensive market research, which ensures that they are the most compliant products and services available to satisfy this contract's requirements.

If the NRC determines any furnished product or service is not in compliance with the contract, the Contracting Officer (CO) will promptly inform the Contractor in writing. The Contractor shall, without charge to the NRC, repair or replace the non-compliant products or services within the period of time specified in writing by the CO. If such repair or replacement is not completed within the time specified, the NRC shall have the following recourses:

Cancellation of the contract, delivery or task order, purchase of line item without termination liabilities; or

Section C

In the case of custom EIT being developed for the NRC, the NRC shall have the right to have any necessary changes made or repairs performed, by the NRC or by another firm, and the Contractor shall reimburse the NRC for any expenses thereby incurred.
