

De-conversion Facility License Application Review Process

* Documents available to the public – ○; Opportunity for public participation – □; NRC Interaction with Licensee – ▭.

Additional Information

NRC Licensing Process

- NRC performs a technical review of the application to ensure it meets NRC health and safety regulations
 - The technical review takes 18 months
 - Request additional information, if needed
 - Document safety review in a Safety Evaluation Report
- In parallel to the safety review, NRC prepares an Environmental Impact Statement
 - The environmental review takes 24 months
 - The draft and final EIS are published in the Federal Register

Public Participation

- Obtain information at www.nrc.gov on
 - Time, location and public access to meetings, see Public Meetings & Involvement
 - NRC processes and how to participate
 - Publicly available information about the license application
- Four additional NRC public outreach meetings including environmental scoping meeting
- Respond to the Federal Register notice announcing the opportunity to request a hearing
- Request to be added to the NRC's email distribution list (email matthew.bartlett@nrc.gov)