Hi Ron,

Yes, if the deal goes through, it will be a change in control of our ultimate parent company, Uranium One Inc. (Canada). I heard about the "deal" on Tuesday, the day we saw the press release just like you! Evidently this was held very close to the vest to avoid stock market implications. I am trying to find out more about the transaction, and what steps will be taken for the approval of the deal (due diligence period or not, what other regulatory approvals in the U.S. are necessary besides NRC ... CFIUS, etc.). Most of the corporate people involved in this are still in Asia, so I hope to hear something back early next week. As soon as I know the plans, I will be in contact with you.

Best regards,

Donna

Donna:

Uranium One's press release of June 8, 2010 indicated that JSC Atomredmetzoloto (ARMZ) will acquire a 51% stake in Uranium One, Inc., and that the transaction is expected to be completed before the end of 2010. This appears that it may be a change of control for the NRC License SUA-1341. I'm inquiring if NRC will be seeing an application for a change of control. If this is the case, we will need to plan for this action and adequate time will be needed to complete the review. Please let me know your plans.

Thanks.
