A.5 NRC Acquisition Clauses - (NRCAR) 48 CFR Ch. 20

A.6 2052.209-72 CONTRACTOR ORGANIZATIONAL CONFLICTS OF INTEREST (JAN 1993)

(a) Purpose. The primary purpose of this clause is to aid in ensuring that the contractor:

(1) Is not placed in a conflicting role because of current or planned interests (financial, contractual, organizational, or otherwise) which relate to the work under this contract; and

(2) Does not obtain an unfair competitive advantage over other parties by virtue of its performance of this contract.

(b) Scope. The restrictions described apply to performance or participation by the contractor, as defined in 48 CFR 209.570-2 in the activities covered by this clause.

(c) Work for others.

(1) Notwithstanding any other provision of this contract, during the term of this contract, the contractor agrees to forego entering into consulting or other contractual arrangements with any firm or organization the result of which may give rise to a conflict of interest with respect to the work being performed under this contract. The contractor shall ensure that all employees under this contract abide by the provision of this clause. If the contractor has reason to believe, with respect to itself or any employee, that any proposed consultant or other contractual arrangement with any firm or organization may involve a potential conflict of interest, the contractor shall obtain the written approval of the contracting officer before the execution of such contractual arrangement.

(2) The contractor may not represent, assist, or otherwise support an NRC licensee or applicant undergoing an NRC audit, inspection, or review where the activities that are the subject of the audit, inspection, or review are the same as or substantially similar to the services within the scope of this contract (or task order as appropriate) except where the NRC licensee or applicant requires the contractor's support to explain or defend the contractor's prior work for the utility or other entity which NRC questions.

(3) When the contractor performs work for the NRC under this contract at any NRC licensee or applicant site, the contractor shall neither solicit nor perform work in the same or similar technical area for that licensee or applicant organization for a period commencing with the award of the task order or beginning of work on the site (if not a task order contract) and ending one year after completion of all work under the associated task order, or last time at the site (if not a task order contract).

(4) When the contractor performs work for the NRC under this contract at any NRC licensee or applicant site,

(i) The contractor may not solicit work at that site for that licensee or applicant during the period of performance of the task order or the contract, as appropriate.

(ii) The contractor may not perform work at that site for that licensee or applicant during the period of performance of the task order or the contract, as appropriate, and for one year thereafter.

(iii) Notwithstanding the foregoing, the contracting officer may authorize the contractor to solicit or perform this type of work (except work in the same or similar technical area) if the contracting officer determines that the situation will not pose a potential for technical bias or unfair competitive advantage.

(d) Disclosure after award.

(1) The contractor warrants that to the best of its knowledge and belief, and except as otherwise set forth in this contract, that it does not have any organizational conflicts of interest as defined in 48 CFR 2009.570-2.

(2) The contractor agrees that if, after award, it discovers organizational conflicts of interest with respect to this contract, it shall make an immediate and full disclosure in writing to the contracting officer. This statement must include a description of the action which the contractor has taken or proposes to take to avoid or mitigate such conflicts. The NRC may, however, terminate the contract if termination is in the best interest of the Government.

(3) It is recognized that the scope of work of a task-order-type contract necessarily encompasses a broad spectrum of activities. Consequently, if this is a task-order-type contract, the contractor agrees that it will disclose all proposed new work involving NRC licensees or applicants which comes within the scope of work of the underlying contract. Further, if this contract involves work at a licensee or applicant site, the contractor agrees to exercise diligence to discover and disclose any new work at that licensee or applicant site. This disclosure must be made before the submission of a bid or proposal to the utility or other regulated entity and must be received by the NRC at least 15 days before the proposed award date in any event, unless a written justification demonstrating urgency and due diligence to discover and disclose is provided by the contractor and approved by the contracting officer. The disclosure must include the statement of work, the dollar value of the proposed contract, and any other documents that are needed to fully describe the proposed work for the regulated utility or other regulated entity. NRC may deny approval of the disclosed work only when the NRC has issued a task order which includes the technical area and, if site-specific, the site, or has plans to issue a task order which includes the technical area and, if site-specific, the site, or when the work violates paragraphs (c)(2), (c)(3) or (c)(4) of this section.

(e) Access to and use of information.

(1) If in the performance of this contract, the contractor obtains access to information, such as NRC plans, policies, reports, studies, financial plans, internal data protected by the Privacy Act of 1974 (5 U.S.C. Section 552a (1988)), or the Freedom of Information Act (5 U.S.C. Section 552 (1986)), the contractor agrees not to:

(i) Use this information for any private purpose until the information has been released to the public;

(ii) Compete for work for the Commission based on the information for a period of six months after either the completion of this contract or the release of the information to the public, whichever is first;

TITLE: Confirmatory Review of Modular Composite Structures Design

BACKGROUND

Advanced reactor designs are adopting a modular construction approach as one of the major features for some of their structures. This modular construction is a type of sandwich, steel-concrete (SC) composite construction herein called SC composite construction. Structural SC composite walls consist of plain concrete with steel faceplates on both faces attached to the concrete by shear connectors and with additional design details related to the specific construction method utilized. Floor and roof slabs of SC composite construction may consist of a concrete slab, a steel face plate attached to the bottom face of the concrete by shear connectors and a mesh of reinforcing bars near the top face of the slab.

Experimental and theoretical research on the behavior of this type of construction has been conducted over the past 15 years by, for example, utilities and construction companies in Japan. In 2005, the Japan Electric Association (JEA) developed and published guidance for the earthquake resistant design of SC composite structures in nuclear power plants in guide JEAG-4618 "Technical Guidelines for Aseismic Design of Steel Plate Reinforced Concrete Structures." The Korean Society of Steel Construction (KSSC) is in the process of developing a specification for SC composite structures called "Specification for Safety-Related Steel Plate Concrete Structures for Nuclear Facilities (Draft)." Additional research on SC composite structures has been conducted in Korea, which is being used to support the development of the KSSC draft specification. SC composite construction has been used for certain internal structures and partition walls of nuclear power plants in Japan, and has been proposed for internal, safety-related, structures in an existing design certification. Variants of the type of SC composite construction proposed for that certified design are now being proposed for structural components of safety-related structures in plants for new reactor designs, including cylindrical walls and roof slabs of exterior, seismic category I structures. The walls and slabs of these structures are several feet thick and their overall dimensions are greater than the dimensions of internal structures and partition walls.

Design methods and criteria being proposed by applicants for the design of safety-related structures using SC construction are not within the scope of structural design codes of the American Concrete Institute (ACI) such as ACI 349 and ACI 318, or within structural design specifications of the American Institute of Steel Construction (AISC) such as AISC N690 and AISC 360. Therefore, evaluation of their safety requires special scrutiny and case-by-case guidance. The Office of Nuclear Regulatory Research (RES) of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC) plans to form a peer-review group to support a confirmatory review of the adequacy and sufficiency of the technical bases for the design methods, a term used here to include structural analysis for the calculation of load effects for design purposes, construction methods and inspection methods being proposed for safety-related structures of SC composite construction.

OBJECTIVE

The objective of this procurement is to contract the members of a peer-review group being formed by the NRC to support a confirmatory review of the adequacy and sufficiency of the technical bases for the design method, construction method and inspection method being proposed for an external seismic category I SC structure for a new reactor design. Adequacy and sufficiency of those technical bases shall be evaluated from the point of view of the safety of the proposed structure. Each member of this peer-review group shall inform the NRC staff, independently from the other members of the group and from the government, with respect to the findings of that group member.

SCOPE OF WORK

The project consists of two tasks: Task 1 which consists of the technical work; and Task 2 which consists of participation in meetings, related travel and reporting of findings. The description of Task 1 provides the scope of the technical work while the description of Task 2 provides the scope of meeting participation and reporting.

Task 1 – Confirmatory Review of Design Methods, Construction Method and Inspection Method.

Each member of the peer-review group shall provide an independent assessment of the design method, construction method and inspection being proposed for a seismic category I structure for plants of a new reactor design. This assessment shall be done from the point of view of the safety of the proposed structure. Here, the use of the term design method is meant to include the calculation of the load-effects on components for design purposes, i.e., structural response analysis, as well as the sizing, proportioning and detailing of components to provide adequate capacity.

To assist in focusing the review, the NRC will provide, to each member of the peer-review group, lists with a description of specific aspects of the design method, construction method and inspection method for which specific input from the contractor is requested by the NRC. These lists may include the motivations for the request therein. The review shall assess the sufficiency and adequacy of the technical bases and assumptions for the design method for the applicable combinations of seismic loads and environmental loads with other loads. Members of the peer-review group shall review application materials for design certification submitted by the applicant to the NRC including supplemental reports and supplemental testing planned by the applicant. Review of this supplemental testing shall address the adequacy of the tests in either supporting or confirming specific parts of the design method.

Design issues and analysis aspects to be considered shall include but are not limited to: (i) out-of-plane bending; (ii) out-of-plane shear; (iii) combined effects of out-of-plane shear, bending and axial forces; (iv) in-plane shear combined with membrane axial forces; (v) anchorages between SC composite components and reinforced concrete components; (vi) joint reinforcement; (vii) local buckling of steel faceplates; (viii) initial stresses on the steel plates from wet concrete placement; (ix) concrete creep, concrete shrinkage and transfer of loads to the steel face plates; and (x) the analyses used for the calculation of load effects for design purposes, including consideration of redistribution of shear forces under lateral seismic loads that may result from concrete cracking. Design issues and aspects shall be assessed, as applicable, for dynamic, cyclic loading conditions typical of earthquake loads. In addition, the review shall assess construction aspects related to the placement of concrete, type of concrete utilized, and inspection methods, from the point of view of how these aspects may affect behaviors assumed in the design that are relevant for safety. The assessment by each member of the peer-review group also may take into consideration the JEAG-4618 and the KSSC draft specification referred to in the Background section as well as any available information from the experimental and analytical programs used to support their development.

Task 2 – Meeting Participation and Reporting

Each member of the peer-review group shall participate in technical conference calls and technical review meetings with other group members and NRC staff as well as applicable public meetings with the NRC and the applicant. These calls and meetings will be managed and coordinated by staff of the Office of Nuclear Regulatory Research (RES). The NRC anticipates that the technical meetings will be held either at NRC facilities in Rockville, Maryland or other meeting facilities in the Rockville, Maryland area. As applicable to the stage of the review, each member of the peer-review group will provide oral communication of the member's comments, observations and concerns, if any, at the technical meetings and conference calls. In addition, as applicable to the stage of the review, each member of the peer-review group will deliver, in the form of letter reports to the NRC Project Officer (PO), independent assessments resulting from the member's review.

RESEARCH QUALITY

The quality of NRC research programs are assessed each year by the Advisory Committee on Reactor Safeguards (ACRS). Within the context of their reviews of RES programs, the definition of quality research is based upon several major characteristics:

- Results meet the objectives (75% of overall score)
 - Justification of major assumptions (12%)
 - Soundness of technical approach and results (52%)
 - Uncertainties and sensitivities addressed (11%)
- Documentation of research results and methods is adequate (25% of overall score)
 - Clarity of presentation (16%)
 - Identification of major assumptions (9%)

It is the responsibility of the Contractor to ensure that these quality criteria are adequately addressed throughout the course of the research that is performed. The NRC PO will review all research products with these criteria in mind.

TECHNICAL AND OTHER SPECIAL QUALIFICATIONS REQUIRED

Members of the peer-review group will have nationally or internationally recognized expertise in the behavior and design of reinforced concrete structures or in the behavior and design of steel-composite structures. Recognized expertise shall be demonstrated by a combination of the following: (1) a body of experimental or analytical research disseminated in peer-reviewed technical publications, e.g., addressing aspects such as shear strength of plain, reinforced or prestressed concrete, seismic retrofit of concrete structures with steel jacketing or fiber-reinforced polymers, concrete filled composite construction; (2) national or international recognition for leadership in research and design of reinforced concrete, prestressed concrete or steel-composite structures; (3) past or current participation on national codes or specifications committees of the ACI or AISC or Prestressed Concrete Institute (PCI); (4) past or current participation in international code committees for reinforced concrete or steel-concrete composites; (5) specialized consultancy and advisory for industry as well as for federal, state and local government agencies; (6) expertise in structural dynamics and earthquake resistant design and analysis; (7) leadership in investigations related to structural building failures and performance; and (8) past experience with the confirmatory review of the design method, construction and inspection method being proposed for an external seismic category I SC structure for a new reactor design under review.

LEVEL OF EFFORT

The estimated level of effort in terms of staff hours, for staff with the level of experience required for the project, is 400 hours.

PERIOD OF PERFORMANCE

The period of performance for the entire project is ten months.

REPORTING REQUIREMENTS

The reporting requirements for each member of the peer-review group are as follows:

- i) Monthly letter reports summarizing activities during the month and expenses.
- ii) Oral communication of findings, as applicable to the stage of the review, at technical meetings and conference calls with the NRC staff.
- iii) Draft letter reports to the PO, as applicable to the stage of the review, with summary of comments, observations and concerns, if any.

PUBLICATIONS NOTE

RES encourages the publication of the scientific results from RES sponsored programs in refereed scientific and engineering journals as appropriate. If the Contractor proposes to publish in the open literature or present the information at meeting in addition to submitting the required technical reports, prior approval of the proposed article or presentation shall be obtained from the NRC PO. The PO shall either approve the material as submitted, or approve it subject to NRC suggested revisions, or disapprove it. The PO may disapprove or delay presentation or publication of papers on information that is subject to Commission approval that has not been ruled upon or which has been disapproved. Additional information regarding the publication of NRC sponsored research is contained in NRC Management Directives 3.7, "NUREG Series Publications," and 3.9, "NRC Staff and Contractor Speeches, Papers, and Journal Articles on Regulatory and Technical Subjects."

If the presentation or paper is in addition to the required technical reports and the PO determines that it will benefit the RES project, the PO may authorize payment of travel and publishing costs, if any, from the project funds. If the PO determines that the article or presentation would not benefit the RES project, the costs associated with the preparation, presentation, or publication shall be borne by the Contractor. For any publication or presentations falling into this category, the NRC reserves the right to require that such presentation or publication shall not identify the NRC's sponsorship of the work.

NEW STANDARDS FOR CONTRACTORS WHO PREPARE NUREG-SERIES MANUSCRIPTS

The U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC) began to capture most of its official records electronically on January 1, 2000. The NRC will capture each final NUREG-series publication in its native application. Therefore, the Contractor shall submit the final manuscript that has been approved by the NRC PO in both electronic and camera-ready copy.

All format guidance, as specified in NUREG-0650, Revision 2, will remain the same with one exception. The Contractor shall no longer be required to include the NUREG-series designator on the bottom of each page of the manuscript. The NRC will assign this designator when the camera-ready copy is sent to the printer and will place the designator on the cover, title page, and spine. The designator for each report will no longer be assigned when the decision to prepare a publication is made. The NRC's Publishing Services Branch will inform the NRC Project Manager for the publication of the assigned designator when the final manuscript is sent to the printer.

For the electronic manuscript, the Contractor shall prepare the text in Microsoft Word, and use any of the following file types for charts, spreadsheets, and the like.

File Types to be Used for NUREG-Series Publications
File Type	File Extension
Microsoft® Word®	.doc
Microsoft® PowerPoint®	.ppt
Microsoft® Excel	.xls
Microsoft® Access	.mdb
Portable Document Format	.pdf

This list is subject to change if new software packages come into common use at NRC or by our licensees or other stakeholders that participate in the electronic submission process. If a portion of the Contractor's manuscript is from another source and the Contractor cannot obtain an acceptable electronic file type for this portion (e.g., an appendix from an old publication), the NRC can, if necessary, create a tagged image file format (file extension.tif) for that portion of the report. Note that the Contractor shall continue to submit original photographs, which will be scanned, since digitized photographs do not print well.

If the Contractor chooses to publish a compact disk (CD) of the publication, place on the CD copies of the manuscript in: (1) a portable document format (PDF); (2) a Microsoft Word file format, and (3) an Adobe Acrobat Reader, or, alternatively, print instructions for obtaining a free copy of Adobe Acrobat Reader on the back cover insert of the jewel box.

Deliverables for each member of the peer-review group include the following:

1. Monthly letter status reports (MLSR) summarizing activities during the month and expenses.
2. Support of technical meetings with the NRC staff and other members of the peer-review group, as applicable, including public meetings with the NRC and the applicant.
