To Whom This May Concern,

I recently read an article about the possibility of radioactive metal being recycled into everyday products. What are you all "Crazy"? This is an outrage. We ll know what radioactive products do to humans, let alone the environment. Even though this is supposed to be regulated there is too much of a chance that someone won't follow the rules. Just the fact that your willing to take chances with people's lives is wrong.

People should not be forced to live with radioactive products. I could guarantee that we will be seeing an increase in cancer cases and infant defects in the future and there's too many of these types of cases already. If your finding ~~is~~ it tough to find a home for your waste products then stop making nuclear power crap! We Don't Need it!!!
