Speaking to reporters during the World Economic Forum in Davos, Switzerland, Amano noted that such an office would enable the IAEA to have “close contact” on Japan’s progress in mitigating the effects of the Fukushima accident. According to an Agence France Presse report on the subject, “Tokyo wants an international seal of approval for the energy-hungry country’s nuclear industry to bolster its faltering efforts at reassuring the public it is safe to resume atomic operations.” The article is attached for information. The staff will keep the Commission apprised of any developments. <hr/> Contact: J.
