I will set up the calls after I know that you need to have one. I will see if Friday or Monday will work for the reviewers. Do you have any time limitations?

Hi Rob

I was not sure if you were leaving the office today but here are some thoughts you can consider.

I know you have quite a few folks to coordinate for a phone call so why don't you go ahead and schedule a call 2-3 days after you send us the draft RAIs. As a preference we like to have the calls in the morning but irrespective we will meet your schedule. If we decide a call is not necessary I will immediately let you know and you can cancel the call and issue the formal RAI's

I suspect you will have quite a few draft RAIs to cover over the next few weeks and that process will help us move through the process efficiently.

For any RAIs that you issue between now and Christmas if you can assign a 45 day response time it will allow us to manage our workload though the holidays.

For this first set of RAIs we do need a phone call so either Friday or Monday works well for us

Think it over and we can discuss it more...thanks Chris
