Subject: closing Indian Point

We need to close Indian Point because the people who live nearby it have a right not to have their environment polluted from radioactive spills into the air and water from the plant. We need to close Indian Point because the people who live nearby it have the right to live in safety, not constantly in fear of a nuclear disaster, especially after what happened in Japan. Also, we need to close it because it produces a waste product that is toxic. We need to close it because it is already too old. Finally, we need to close it because we already have other forms of energy available that are non-polluting, safe, and sustainable, such as wind and solar.

The only reason Indian Point has not already been closed is because it is making a handful of corporate shareholders and CEOs a ton of money. They don't give a damn about the danger that such a polluting, toxic, dangerous, old plant presents to millions of people.

How sick is that?
