PROGRAM SCOPE

On October 3, 2012, an U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Inspector conducted an inspection of the licensee's main office located in Canton, Michigan with an in-office review through November 7, 2012. The in-office review included receipt and review of dosimetry information that was unavailable during the on-site inspection.

The licensee was developing a new camera system to be used for cardiology scans. The licensee had not used any unsealed materials since the last quarter of 2011. The licensee was down to one authorized user and was contemplating termination of its license in the near future.

The licensee demonstrated how a cobalt- 57 check source was used during presentations of the camera system to potential investors. Independent surveys were conducted by the inspector and there were no abnormal results.

Records reviewed included leak test results, dosimetry results, survey results, package receipt survey results, and training documentation.

No violations were identified.
