Hey Chris,

I'm satisfied with the response to my material questions.

Thanks,

Unless I am mistaken, the process outlined in OI-3 is that we call the applicant to discuss the RAIs we will send them. However, if you find their proposed responses satisfactory, I will not insist that you attend the phone call.

I'll double check OI-3 once I get to the office this morning for future reference.

Chris: this process seems out of normal. I see no point in having discussions with the applicant – now that they have “in writing” provided justification to our official RAIs Round # 1 which have not even gone out yet officially. Unless other reviewers want to participate in the proposed phone call, I see that phone call is too late. We need to send them ASAP the written RAIs and wait for their updated SAR and then proceed further. Thanks.

Didn't intend for this to happen when I sent them an advance copy of the RAIs, but attached is how Croft intends to respond to the RAI letter we will send them (hopefully by the end of the week). If we have any issues with their intended responses we can discuss with them tomorrow during the phone call.
