I support only the immediate decommissioning of all nuclear reactors. Anything less than that, in my opinion, runs contrary to the fact that we have zero ability to permanently store or otherwise make safe high level nuclear waste. No plan for disposal means that we shouldn't be producing the material in the first place. The cost to life on Earth is simply too great to be playing games with this material. This is simple and straightforward logic. It also speaks to the emotion that I have concerning nuclear power. I am disgusted with those who willingly participate in the nuclear industry knowing full well the undeniable threat that long term storage of high level nuclear waste poses. There is nothing more irresponsible and naive than this. We don't need this dirty energy and we don't need the toxic waste. Close these reactors (and all reactors) down.
