Ben,

I appreciate the update. I brought your email to the attention of my upper management.

I would suggest that you submit your comments through emails; this type of communication has worked well in the final stages for several previous licensing actions. I also would suggest that you prioritize the comments. For example, you can forward your comments in two parts; first, those that are straight forward (i.e., typo, simple change); the second would be those comments that require in-depth discussion.

John--

I hope this email reaches you well. Briefly, Strata received the second draft license for the Ross Project on February 11, 2013. Based on the cover letter, NRC expected comments in 14 days or February 25, 2013. Due to the number of new license conditions as well as significantly revised license conditions, we believe more time (several weeks) would be beneficial for both Strata and NRC to work through the second draft license. We understand that this may impact issuance of the SER but believe these efforts are necessary and moreover, will not affect the final licensing schedule. Please let me know if you have any questions or concerns.

Respectfully,

Ben
