Hi Johari:

I have confirmed the liability coverage that Strata has in place for the Ross site. The coverage protects Strata for liability for damages or injury. It in no way covers the tribal entities or survey group members for liability or injury. Such a rider is not commercially available unless the tribal members were employees of Strata and this would call the independence of the surveys into question.

Strata will not require a waiver as long as it is clearly disclosed to the participating tribes that they need to cover their own potential liability and injury exposure with appropriate coverage.

Mike
