Dennis,

Here is the link to the Columbia ESA/EFH Assessment Format:

G:\ADRO\DLR\RERB\Biology Resources\Templates & Guidance\Standardized ESA and EFH Format_Columbia

All the grey text is embedded as a "fillable field," so that when you click, it should disappear and you can start typing. In theory, this should help us catch all places where a particular plant name, company, etc., is supposed to be filled in – so that we don't end up with "Indian Point" where it is supposed to say "Columbia." This is a feature of Microsoft Word that I haven't used before, so I kind of self-taught myself from online tutorials. If you notice any bugs with it, let me know. I may have not inserted/coded a field correctly. Thanks!
