Subject: Protect our communities from radioactive waste!

Allison McFarlane

Dear McFarlane,

I just came back from a training of trauma healing and 3 of the participants were 3 young women from Fukushima area. They are working with the elderly and single mothers, practically the only ones who have not left the area due to their inability to do so. They were learning ways to deal with trauma to teach to their community.

The Japanese have learned to deal with the effects of nuclear disasters since Hiroshima. And they are still not able to contain the damage and continuing damage to the waterways and the farmlands. The rate of cancer will rise.

Yuko, a 23 year old that I met wears a radiation counter as a necklance around her neck to document the levels of radiation her body is exposed to wherever she goes. Is this our future?

The EIS should consider the option of not making any nuclear waste at all in the future by comparing the environmental footprint of nuclear from mining to long term waste disposal to that of renewables and energy efficiency.

No Nukes! Why would we want to do this when we have other safe alternatives? Solar and wind are sooo underutilized. Stop making the bottom line money..... Our health is more precious than gold. Our happiness is worth more than money can buy. Our peace of mind is a great health insurance plan!

thanks,
Sheila Fox

Sincerely,

Sheila Fox
