General Comment

There isn't much of a place for emotions in government, which isn't lost on me, but the ability to put a blanket over a larger issue isn't lost on me either. Each of the waste sites need different regulations based on what materials they handle. Handing out one answer for many questions won't suffice. Nothing I say will change this document, which might be slightly nihilistic of me but not without its truths, so do whatever you can to make that dollar stretch. Money means more than people, doesn't it?
