Tami,

Our office has developed a new process for project reviews. Please see attached letter and let me know if you have any questions. When you submit your project through our website there is no need to resend any information that you have already provided in your letter that we received December 3, 2013.

Thanks,

Kim

Greetings:

Due to increases in workload and refinement of our priorities in Virginia, this office will no longer provide individual responses to requests for environmental reviews. However, we want to ensure that U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service trust resources continue to be conserved. When that is not possible, we want to ensure that impacts to these important natural resources are minimized and appropriate permits are applied for and received. We have developed a website, http://www.fws.gov/northeast/virginiafield/endspecies/Project\_Reviews\_Introduction.html, that provides the steps and information necessary to allow landowners, applicants, consultants, agency personnel, and any other individual or entity requiring review/approval of their project to complete a review and come to the appropriate conclusion.

The website will be frequently updated to provide new species/trust resource information and methods to review projects, so refer to the website for each project review to ensure that current information is utilized.

If you have any questions about project reviews or need assistance, please contact Troy Andersen of this office at (804) 693-6694, extension 166, or troy\_andersen@fws.gov. For problems with the website, please contact Mike Drummond of this office at mike\_drummond@fws.gov.

Sincerely,

Cindy Schulz
