Dear Secretary,

C'mon, guys, WEAKEN the nuclear waste rules? Someone is kidding, right? Right? Or living in an alternate dimension. Or would that be dementia? I mean, have we ever built an essentially forever integral, safe, radioactive waste storage container? Are you sure about that? And it's pretty darn nervy of someone to suggest nuclear waste should be OK to just throw in any trash, used as ingredients in consumer goods, disposal contractors should be the reviewers of their own work, states cannot adopt stricter rules than the feds, and, well, we know we said that over 25 milirems was bad for people, but, well, now we are going to say it is OK for radiation releases to be much more than that.

Are we in the Twilight Zone?
