Bryan,

I would not consider it a change of control requiring prior NRC approval. Even if it were considered otherwise, the licensee has in this case provided prior notice, enabling prior NRC approval (which would seem appropriate given that the people, procedures, materials, etc. are not changing).

Hey Jared,

We have received notification from Mallinckrodt in the St. Louis area that they are doing a corporate restructure. As you probably know, they are probably the largest materials licensee in the country. They indicate that they do not think this transaction constitutes a change of control and I agree. However, I would appreciate it if you could give their letter a read and see if you agree with their conclusion.

Their letter dated September 21, 2015 can be found at ML15265A509.

Also, here is a link to NUREG-1556, Vol 15 that they reference if you need it:

If you have any questions, please let me know. Thanks for your help on this.

Bryan
