RE: Notice of Lost Electron Capture Detector (ECD) Report

Eurofins Eaton Analytical, Inc., (EEA) located at 110 South Hill Street, South Bend, IN 46617 is reporting a lost ECD serial# B798 that was listed under the General License GL-638703 held by MAS Technologies.

A notice to the NRC was sent on November 25, 2015 stating that the devices under General License GL-638703 was transferred to EEA located at 110 South Hill Street, South Bend, Indiana 46617. At this time it was brought to our attention by Hector Rodriguez-Luccioni, of the Material Safety Licensing Branch, that ECD, Serial# B798 should be in our possession. After a thorough search of the facility and records we could not locate ECD B798.

I called the NRC Operations Center at (301)-816-5100 and reported the lost ECD on 12-2-2015.

Written report in accordance to 10 CFR 20.2201.

- (i) Lost device ECD, Serial# B798, Model# 02-0001972-00, isotope ^{63}Ni , activity 15 mCi, was manufactured by Varian Associates, Inc.
- (ii) Was not located in a recent inventory check.
- (iii) The ECD was more than likely returned to Varian for disposal before 2008.
- (iv) No known exposures have been reported from this ECD at this time.
- (v) We performed a thorough search of the facility and in-house records. In addition we attempted to contact Varian. In 2010 Varian was sold off to Agilent and Buker Corp. Buker Corp then sold off their portion of Varian Gas Chromatography equipment to Scion in 2014. All three companies were contacted in order to determine who currently holds the Varian ECD records. None of the companies contacted claimed to hold the records.
- (vi) We now maintain a list of ECDs showing each ECD location. The list is maintained by the laboratory and monitored by the RSO. See current active list.

If you have any questions, please do not hesitate to contact me directly.
