General Comment

There is no place to safely store spent fuel. There is no place to safely store spent fuel. There is no place to safely store spent fuel. A person with an ounce of common sense must realize that we are imperfect human beings and fallible. We make mistakes. Accidents happen. So in good conscience you cannot sign onto this report. You know in your heart you are risking the safety, health and well being for generations to come. Please please let your heart be your guide. It is really the only that can insure a decision that will serve humanity in the best possible way and something you can be very proud of.

Thank you.
