Bryan,

I agree with your assessment. According to the letter from Mallinckrodt, the ultimate parent company (and stockholder) is not changing, nor are any officers or personnel with control over the licenses. Accordingly, while there is a change of the intermediary holding company standing between the licensee and its ultimate parent, there appears to be no immediate change of control.

Subject: Mallinckrodt document

Hey Jared,

Could you please review a document from Mallinckrodt and give us your thoughts on this transaction? Mallinckrodt, the licensee, does not feel that this impending reorganization constitutes a change of control per our regulations in 30.34(b). We agree that it does not appear to be a change of control, but we would like your opinion as well.

You can find the document at ML16165A428.

If you have questions, please let me know.

Thanks.
Bryan
