In the Matter of Niagara Mohawk Power Corporation
(Nine Mile Point, Unit No. 2)
Docket No. 50-410

Dear Sirs:

This is to advise you that the Regulatory Staff late yesterday obtained assurance from G. Wilson Horde, Esquire, Division Counsel for Union Carbide Corporation with responsibilities for Oak Ridge National Laboratory, that Messrs. John Moyers and Eric Hirst can be present at the January 16, 1973 session of the evidentiary hearing in Syracuse, and that they will be present, represented by Mr. Horde, and available for testimony on behalf of any party to this proceeding desiring such testimony if any such party telephones Mr. Horde promptly at (615)483-7295 or (615)483-8611, ext. 7295 and addresses a specific reasonable request to Messrs. Moyers and Hirst through Mr. Horde. The staff has, by telephone, transmitted Mr. Horde's offer to each of the parties to this proceeding.

Sincerely,

Jerome S. Cohen
Counsel for AEC Regulatory Staff

The first part of the document discusses the importance of maintaining accurate records of all transactions. It emphasizes that proper record-keeping is essential for the smooth operation of any business and for the protection of its interests.

In the second part, the author outlines the various methods used to collect and analyze data. This includes the use of surveys, interviews, and focus groups to gather information from a wide range of sources. The analysis of this data is then used to identify trends and patterns that can inform decision-making.

The third part of the document focuses on the implementation of the findings from the data analysis. It describes the various strategies and techniques used to put the research into practice, including the development of new products, the improvement of existing services, and the implementation of new marketing campaigns.

Finally, the document concludes by discussing the overall impact of the research and the importance of continuing to monitor and evaluate the results of the implementation. It stresses that the success of any business depends on its ability to adapt to changing market conditions and to stay ahead of its competitors.

The author concludes that the research has provided valuable insights into the needs and preferences of the target market. These insights can be used to develop more effective marketing strategies and to improve the overall quality of the business.

In summary, the document highlights the importance of data-driven decision-making in the modern business environment. It provides a clear and concise overview of the research process, from data collection to implementation, and emphasizes the need for ongoing evaluation and adaptation.

The author expresses their gratitude to the participants and staff who made the research possible. They also acknowledge the support and guidance of their supervisor throughout the project.

The document is intended to provide a comprehensive overview of the research findings and to serve as a guide for the implementation of the results. It is hoped that this information will be helpful to all those interested in the field of business research and marketing.
