General Comment

I received a high dose of RAI in August 2009 and then drove myself home. The very next day I had a horrible cold. I was blowing my nose and throwing the tissue in the garbage. Not knowing if this could be contaminating landfills, my husband, my cat etc. There was not a lot of direction on what to do except drink lots of water and stay away from people for a few days. Flush the toilet several times after using it and keep my dishes and toothbrush etc away from my husbands. I felt terrible and the isolation in my own home made me depressed as well. I was concerned about sharing the radiation with everyone and not sure when I no longer could contaminate them. Isolation in a hospital would have helped my concerns and my families and been a lot safer I believe.
