RE: US NRC License Number 04-23910-01E

Dear Ms. Shirley Xu:

During an NRC inspection at our offices on May 11, 2017 with Jason Dykert and Shirley Xu it was discovered that watch model SWW-MP18 was not separately listed under license condition 10 on our Materials License 04-23910-01E dated October 2, 2014. Following a modification of the cosmetic style of SWW-12T, the part number was changed to SWW-MP18 for marketing purposes. The quantities of model SWW-MP18 were inadvertently reported under the prior model, SWW-12T. Accordingly, this discovery, does not affect the total quantity and activity reported to the NRC. However, modification of our license is necessary to reflect this model number. We are presently preparing a request to amend our license to add watch model SWW-MP18.

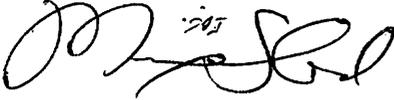

As an immediate corrective action we have separated the models and placed a hold on further distribution of model SWW-MP18. This item will remain unavailable for sale until the amendment has been made. In addition, our Annual Exempt Distribution Reports for 2014 and 2015 have been amended and re-submitted to reflect distribution of model SWW-MP18. Please note that model SWW-MP18 was reported separately on our 2013 Annual Exempt Distribution Report, dated March 28, 2016. As a result, we believe that this oversight stemmed from legacy work practices.

Under the new work processes and check lists that we are developing in response to Confirmatory Order (EA-14-080), this type of error will be avoided going forward. For example, we have created a better system for managing our inventory reporting by specifically coding our tritium model numbers to distinguish the models that must be reported.

We deeply regret this error and wish to reiterate our unconditional commitment to regulatory compliance, including timely implementation of the Confirmatory Order action items.
