Subject: Request to delay RAI issuance related to MIT Amendment Request supporting the Nuclear Safety System Upgrade

Edward Lau,

This email confirms that the NRC will honor your request to delay issuance of our first round of requests for additional information (RAIs) until no later than the end of October 2017. This email also confirms that you will receive the standard 30 days to respond to the RAI once it has been issued.

In light of this requested delay the NRC staff will need to adjust the forecasted completion date related to the amendment request. The NRC staff cannot continue working on the safety evaluation report, supporting the amendment request, until we receive your responses to the subject RAIs.

Sincerely,
Patrick G. Boyle
Project Manager for MIT

Dear Patrick:

The NRL staff is reviewing the draft RAI, and has determined that the timing for its formal issuance should be mid- to late-October 2017. In between, we would like to have time to provide you with our feedback for discussion. Many thanks.

Ed,

This email confirms our conversation today that your staff will not be available to begin their review of the draft RAI sent to you on August 24, 2017 for approximately two weeks.

Please provide me with a date that you expect they will be able to complete their review.

Please keep in mind this delay will impact the date which we can approve your license amendment.

Thank you,
Patrick G. Boyle
