Desc: Electronic copies of all flood hazard evaluations submitted in response to the NRC's post-Fukushima orders that are not already publicly available in ADAMS. UCS thought the NRC staff was making these documents publicly available. We'd reviewed the evaluations for Palisades (ML15114A208) and Pilgrim (ML15075A082). But when we were asked to review the evaluation for South Texas Project after Hurricane Harvey, we found that the NRC staff had only placed the transmittal letter (ML13079A806) and not its enclosures in public ADAAMS. We submitted FOIA/PA-2017-0687 trying to access this document. TO prevent future delays answering similar safety questions and to avoid the undue burden of having to tick through each docket to determine whether the NRC staff did, or did not, make these documents publicly available, UCS requests them under the Freedom of Information Act. If the NRC staff applied its document release policies and procedures consistently, this effort by UCS to request and the NRC staff to respond would not be necessary. Alas, it is necessary because the NRC's practices are quite inconsistent.
