CHAIRMAN

UNITED STATES
NUCLEAR REGULATORY COMMISSION
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20555-0001

February 22, 2017

MEMORANDUM TO:

(b)(6)

FROM:

Kristine L. Svinicki, Chairman

SUBJECT:

REQUEST FOR TEMPORARY WAIVER FROM PROHIBITED
SECURITIES RESTRICTION

On January 9, 2017, you submitted to the Office of the General Counsel (OGC) a request for a temporary waiver from the requirements of 5 C.F.R. § 5801.102. This regulation establishes a list of securities that covered NRC employees, and the spouses and minor children of those employees, are prohibited from owning. Specifically, you asked that the requirements of 5 C.F.R. § 5801.102 be waived so that your son can continue owning 1,450 shares of General Electric stock until (b)(6), when he turns age 18 and is no longer a "minor child" subject to the prohibited securities rule. Because the NRC's Chairman is the deciding official on waiver requests of this type, OGC forwarded your request to me for review.

After reviewing your request, I find that a temporary waiver from the requirements of 5 C.F.R. § 5801.102 is appropriate. The waiver I am granting exempts your son from the requirement that he divest the General Electric securities he currently owns. Under the waiver, your son may continue to hold these securities until he turns 18, at which time he will no longer be subject to the prohibited securities rule. Your son may not acquire other prohibited securities prior to his 18th birthday, however, nor may he acquire additional shares of General Electric stock from the date of this memorandum until he turns 18. Furthermore, this waiver is contingent upon you not working on any matter involving General Electric until your son turns 18.

The waiver also covers the brief period when you were not in compliance with the NRC's prohibited securities rule. As you acknowledged in a signed statement upon joining the NRC, you had 90 days to ensure your son divested his interest in General Electric stock. Based on your NRC start date of (b)(6), your son needed to divest his stock by (b)(6) (b)(6). Accordingly, between that date and today's date, your son held securities that were prohibited under the NRC's rule.

Notwithstanding this brief period of noncompliance, I find that a waiver would not be inconsistent with the government-wide standards of ethical conduct in 5 C.F.R. Part 2635, nor would the waiver be prohibited by law. According to your waiver request, you have not worked on matters involving General Electric since you joined the NRC, and you do not expect any such matter to come before you prior to (b)(6). Assuming you do not work on matters involving General Electric before your son turns 18, granting a brief waiver for your son's stock interest would not be inconsistent with the government-wide standards of ethical conduct or be prohibited by law.

I further find that, under the circumstances involved here, strict application of the securities ownership restrictions in 5 C.F.R. § 5801.102 is not necessary to ensure confidence in the impartiality and objectivity of the NRC's programs. Your son will turn 18 on (b)(6), at which time he will no longer be covered by the prohibited securities rule. Although you should have sought a waiver, or divested your son's stock interest, by (b)(6) I find no suggestion you were trying to evade the prohibited securities rule. In fact, prior to joining the NRC you consulted with both OGC and the Office of the Chief Human Capital Officer (OCFO) regarding this rule. You also emailed OCFO questions related to divestiture during the 90-day period after you joined the NRC. As your son's divestiture deadline approached, however, you should have contacted OGC directly with questions about your obligations under the prohibited securities rule. Should you have such questions in the future—or any other ethics-related questions—I encourage you to contact an ethics counselor at ethics.resource@nrc.gov.

To summarize, I grant you a waiver exempting your son from the requirement that he divest his General Electric securities. Under the waiver, your son can continue holding these securities until (b)(6) at which time he will no longer be a "minor child" subject to the prohibited securities rule. Your son may not, however, acquire additional shares of General Electric stock from the date of this memorandum until he turns 18. Furthermore, the waiver is contingent upon you not working on any matter involving General Electric while your son remains a minor.
