Great, thanks for the update.

FYI, my management has decided that we will perform another inspection once you install the sources into the profilers, most likely again at the offices in Houston.

I am not aware of a current requirement to notify us of the installation completion, however, we will look forward to receiving the notification regardless.

Jason,

Per our conversation at the initial inspection, Hess does commit to take pictures during the installation of the profilers along with all of the postings for awareness within the facility. The installation of the profilers has been postponed due to some POB space and critical operational work taking more priority. We anticipate the installation to be staged over the next few months and we submit the notification of the installation accordingly.

Regards,
Brian

Brian, if you could send me the email as we discussed about including pictures of the gauges/separators and postings out on the platform in the annual audit or other file, I would appreciate it. I will include it as a note in the file for when the next NRC inspector plans to visit HESS.
