Subject: [External_Sender] Something Is Wrong

Hello,

Have you read any news this week about Entergy in Louisiana? I saw something that I did not expect.

Under my usual, daily Google search of "Entergy", I landed on a site called "RTO Insider" and read a September 20, 2018 article by Tom Kleckner titled: "Hearing Set for Louisiana's Entergy Grand Gulf Complaint". I don't know what "RTO" means and I don't know what "sale-leaseback renewals under a unit-power sales agreement" means, either.

I do know that words like "violated the filed-rate doctrine and FERC's ratemaking and accounting requirements" mean that something is wrong.

Could I make these suggestions?

Determine if the sale of 11.5% of Grand Gulf to private-equity investors was legal.

Until proven otherwise, suspect (and investigate accordingly) that Entergy may be double billing at other plants, and in particular the New York based Indian Point plants.

Immediately confirm, for ALL Entergy plants, that the claimed amount available for decommissioning is actually available for that purpose.

Thank you,

Tom Gurdziel

(If I understand the financial numbers correctly, in the one case in question, the amount is in the 500 million dollar area and was identified by the Louisiana PSC.)
