

PUBLIC SUBMISSION

As of: 1/30/19 12:59 PM Received: January 29, 2019 Status: Pending_Post Tracking No. 1k3-97yo-x17r Comments Due: January 29, 2019 Submission Type: Web
---

Docket: NRC-2018-0230

Training and Experience Requirements for Different Categories of Radiopharmaceuticals

Comment On: NRC-2018-0230-0001

Training and Experience Requirements for Different Categories of Radiopharmaceuticals

Document: NRC-2018-0230-DRAFT-0129

Comment on FR Doc # 2018-23521

Submitter Information

Name: Anonymous Anonymous

SUNSI Review Complete
 Template = ADM-013
 E-RIDS=ADM-03
 ADD=Sarah Lopas

General Comment

COMMENT (121)
 PUBLICATION DATE:
 10/29/2018
 CITATION: 83 FR 54380

Allowing nonappropriately trained physicians to administer radioactive treatment compounds to patients does not only increase risks and side effects to the patients but also harms them in the long run.

It also prevents further studies, research and innovations in the field as well as decreases further appropriate training to the next generation of nuclear medicine physicians and technologist who in the past have been able to receive this appropriate and tailored education.