Good morning Elizabeth Benavides,

Last night I attempted to sign up for the EPRI "Human Factors Engineering" course that focuses on digital instrumentation in the Control Room and, apparently, human interaction. I don't know if this is one of those courses you have said is free to the public in your 5-20-2019 e-mail to me. I could not establish an account (which would be the first step) since my work e-mail was not found to be acceptable.

Is there another way to get to take some of these courses?

Thank you,

Tom Gurdziel
Member, ASME

I am presently interested in all courses related to digital Instrumentation and Control.

Thank you Elizabeth. I hope to review those courses free to the public, including NRC and local power plant professional/technical employees, (some of whom I hope have already discovered this resource) .

Mr. Gurdziel,

EPRI provides a suite of other training solutions via our EPRI U portal. I'm attaching a link to our brochure which lists over 500 training solutions and directions for how you, and your colleagues, can access our learning management system. Some of these are free to the public, some have a small fee, others are only available to EPRI funders. NRC employees can engage with our trainings that are available to the public.

Additionally, EPRI U can provide custom training options. We will send one of our experts to your facility and teach what your company needs specifically. There is no reason to let your staff's ability stagnate with our economic technical training solution. We can work with you to customize a class to your specific needs or choose from our extensive catalog of courses.

Please feel free to reach out to us for any of your training needs at epriu@epri.com.

Thank you,

Hello,

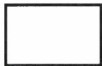

I just read an article about EPRI U in the March-April 2019 issue of "Nuclear Plant Journal." Is it possible for me to see the listing of those 380 courses? How much does it cost to take the courses?

Do you have an estimate of how many technical staff/commercial nuclear plant are presently taking a course?

Are these courses available to US NRC employees?

Thank you,

Tom Gurdziel
