Dear Frank:

You were kind to send a copy of "Intelligence Requirements for the 1980's: Elements of Intelligence". It deals with a subject of vital importance to the future of our nation and I look forward to reading it carefully. One hopes that the damage which has been done can be repaired quickly, but it is always far more difficult to rebuild than to tear down. We seem to have more demolition experts these days than we need.

Thank you again. With warm regards and best wishes for a happy and successful New Year,

Sincerely,

Richard T. Kennedy
