Dear Mr. Bentson:

The Nuclear Regulatory Commission is still delaying permission for the undamaged portion of the Three-Mile Island plant to operate despite exoneration of incompetence in the report by Mitchell Rogovin heading its own Special Inquiry Group.

The recent inconsequential waterleak seems to have provoked over reaction. Even newscasters like veteran Mr. Kronkite continue to accent the millions of gallons of radio active water that still hover over us.

Unless there is some unknown factor involved, it seems incredulous the NRC is unaware not only of the massive financial and moral damage to millions of people directly affected, but to the national energy and defense unishment?

I'm sure you realize this is critical to us all and not just to local and state governments and your colleagues from Pennsylvania and New Jersey, and would appreciate your comments.

Cordially,
David W. Young Sr.
