Gentlemen:

The incident involving the Radiation Power Plant, southeast of Harrisburg, has brought on a few questions. First I would like to know why it took 3 hrs and 45 min. to declare an emergency. I think the plant should have had an emergency testing to see how the facilities would hold up. Will this leak affect us in Norristown? Will the leak affect our drinking water or our food? What would have happened if there had been heavy winds? How much damage will this leak do to our human and wild life? How long will it be before people can go back to work there? Will the crystalized iodine affect us in any way. One important question, will the leak affect our atmosphere and our ozone layer.

I'm sure there is a good reason for everything.

Sincerely,

Susan Brock
