Dear Sir:

I'm writing to you expressing my views on the nuclear power system. I think you should not worry about what happened in Harrisburg. I mean it was just a mistake and only could happen once in a lifetime. It was also a big mistake and very dangerous too, but believe me we need nuclear power for our home appliances. All you have to do now, is store away all that radioactive water and everything will be back to normal. Now if it did blow up, I wouldn't be here writing to you and you wouldn't be reading this, because we would be dead. So all I'm asking is that you double check from now on, O.K. Thank you for listening.

yours truly,
Brian Ralph
