Dear Sir:

No one knows how much of certain types of radiation was released in the early hours of the nuclear occurrence at Three Mile Island Atomic Power Plant.

Did anyone count the number of deaths shortly after March 28 among the elderly people from the area nursing homes that were evacuated because of the accident at Three Mile Island who never would have been moved if there had never been a Three Mile Island?

A price cannot be put on the disruption in peoples' lives, the mental anguish, and the continuing fear.

If five people had died from radiation exposure within thirty days of the accident, surely many more would have died shortly thereafter.

Criterion I and Criterion II favor the nuclear industry.

Sincerely,

Alice A. Herman
