Dear Bob:

In reading the Lansing Star recently I ran across an article which stated that the Big Rock Point nuclear power plant is exempt from the Nuclear Regulatory Commission's safety regulations. I find this statement a bit hard to believe. Could you find out if the statement is true and if so how it came to be?

Thanks,

Chuck Cox

Big Rock CD training

The Big Rock Point nuclear power generating plant will be the focal point of a legal rally and civil disobedience planned for May 4. Big Rock, near Charlevoix, Michigan, is exempt from Nuclear Regulatory Commission safety regulations and has been rated among the most unsafe nuclear power plants in the U. S.
