Dear Dr. Snyder,

It's almost incredible to me that the NRC has allotted only 45 days for the people of Pennsylvania to comment on the Environmental Impact Study concerning TMI. I haven't even recieved mine yet; I'm sure it will take me several days to read and comprehend. That gives me very little time to form an opinion and relate it to the NRC. In all fairness, I believe we should be given a more realistic period of time to study and understand this very important document. Frankly, the opinion of most people here is that the NRC is more interested in protecting the stockholders of the utility companies than the safety of the people. Why not counter that by showing some real concern for the citizens of Pennsylvania, and extending the deadline to 90 days?

Respectfully,

Eric Bixler
