Dear NRC

Happy Birthday!!

SP9
On this the first anniversary of the Three Mile Island "incident" I plan to tell my children a bedtime story how once upon a time in far off Pennsylvania not only were some people, the loyal townsfolk, zapped by radiation, but the whole kingdom of nuclear energy began covering up the incident so as not to lose $100,000,000.

They called the townsfolk all sorts of nasty names and refused to tell the truth for ever and ever.

SP70
Meanwhile people in other towns across the land blamed the Nuclear Regulatory Commission for their incompetence in overseeing the training and performance of nuclear plant personnel. It was understood by all that this was their job and yet the NRC took no blame.

The townsfolk got very mad and banished the lot of them from their lands forever and ever. And everyone lived
