Radioactive Scrap

At the annual meeting of Church Women United in Nashville, it was voted unanimously to oppose the Nuclear Regulatory Commission's amendments proposed in parts 30, 32, 70, 150 of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission regulations that scrap metal contaminated by low-level radiation will be "recycled as uncontrolled metal to the market place" and will be used in any number of consumer or capital equipment products such as automotive appliances, furniture, utensils, personal items and coins.
