Subject: Static Eliminator Recall - Comprehensive Report

Gentlemen:

This is in response to your letter of September 28, 1989 requesting a comprehensive report of 3M's recall actions resulting from the Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC) Order of February, 18, 1988.

The information requested is provided below and in the enclosed reports. Each response is identified according to the same numbering system used in the "Outline of Information Requested of 3M as Part of a Comprehensive Report" of your September 28, 1989 letter.

1. Statistics on all Po-210 static eliminators

The total number of all devices in the field as of January 25, 1988 (this includes 49,851 devices on 3M's database and 2,193 devices which were off the database due to age):	52,044
The total number of all devices not returned (including those "lost"):	2,084
The total number of devices returned and tested for leakage:	49,960
The total number of all returned devices that were tested and showed no detectable removable contamination:	48,656

DEC 15 1989

Total number of all returned devices that were tested and showed LESS than 0.005 uCi of removable
contamination: 581

Total number of all returned devices that were tested and showed MORE than 0.005 uCi
of removable contamination: 723

2. Statistics on those Po-210 static eliminators used in the food, beverage, cosmetic and pharmaceutical (FBCP) industries (These devices are included in the statistics in #1 above).

The total number of devices used in FBCP industries that were in the field as of January 25, 1988: 2,148

The total number of devices used in FBCP industries that were NOT returned (including those "lost"): 29

The total number of devices used in FBCP
industries that were returned and tested for leakage: 2,119

The total number of devices returned from FBCP industries that were tested and showed no detectable removable
contamination: 1,984

The total number of devices returned
from FBCP industries that were tested and showed LESS than 0.005 uCi of removable contamination: 45

The total number of devices returned from FBCP industries that were tested and showed
MORE than 0.005 uCi of removable
contamination: 90

3. Enclosed is the "BYPRODUCT MATERIAL TRANSFER REPORT", dated December 11, 1989, which lists (grouped by state) those devices that have not been returned to 3M and are not considered "lost". This report has been submitted monthly since March, 1988.

There are four customers listed on this report and we do not expect them to return the devices. The disposition of these devices are as follows:

CALIFORNIA

Peripheral Technology - The customer has informed us that the devices are critical to their operation. (Presumably still in use).

California Institute of Technology, Jet Propulsion Laboratory - The customer has informed us that these devices were disposed of under a specific license.

Lockhead Missiles and Space Co. - The customer has informed us that this device was disposed of under a specific license.

PENNSYLVANIA

Ashland Chemical Co. - The customer has informed us that the devices are in the possession of the NRC.

4. Enclosed is a report entitled "CONTAMINATED DEVICE LIST," dated November 27, 1989, which lists (grouped by state) those devices which showed measurable removable contamination when tested on return to 3M.

This report includes the customer's name and address, the name and phone number of the contact person of record, the model and serial number of the device, the date the device was tested at 3M, the customer's representative who was notified, the date of notification, the agency notified, the date of notification, and the results of the initial survey of the customer's premises.

In those cases where contamination was found on the customer's premises, as indicated in the last column of this report, a summary of each decontamination effort was included in the report sent to Mr. James Lynch of your office on May 2, 1989. Please refer to that report. There is no report for Alaska, Hawaii, Montana, North Dakota, Utah, or Wyoming. There were no devices with measurable removable contamination returned from these states. There are four devices listed on the last page of this report which were not on the 3M database because of age. We are unable to identify the customer.

5. Enclosed is a report entitled "STATUS 4 DEVICES," dated November 27, 1989, which lists (grouped by state) those devices which have not been logged in at 3M and are not expected to be returned.

This report includes the customer's name and address, the serial and model number of the device, the status code (all 4's indicating "lost" device), the date the device was placed in a status code of "4", the responsible person and phone number (customer), and a statement under the heading of "LOCATION NOTE" which describes the status of the device.

Some of the information notations on the "STATUS 4 DEVICES" report are self-explanatory. The others have the following meanings:

LOST PER CUST/LTR. SENT or LOST/LTR. SENT - The customer has reported that the device is lost. A letter has been sent to the customer advising that the NRC or agreement state must be notified. 3M assumes that the appropriate agency was notified.

POD RECD - "Proof of Delivery" - The customer has sent paper-work to 3M showing that the device was received by 3M. 3M received the paper work, but the device was not logged in at 3M.

POS RECD - "Proof of Shipment" - The customer has sent paper-work to 3M showing that the device was presented to a shipper for shipment. 3M has received the paper work, but the device was not logged in at 3M.

CUST CLAIMS RETRN - The customer claims that the device was returned, but has not provided 3M with paper-work supporting this claim.

Mr. A.B. Davis
U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission
December 13, 1989

There is no report for Alaska, Hawaii, Mississippi, or North Dakota. There were no devices in this category from these states.

6. In 3M's July 18, 1988 response to the Show Cause Order, factors contributing to device failure were listed in the reports of Battelle Pacific Northwest Laboratories (3M's outside consultant), the 3M Research and Design Task Force and the Manufacturing Task Force. 3M's view is that the presence of one or more of these contributing factors were needed to cause device failure.

In reviewing the return device data base that was used to compile the accompanying Contaminated Device Report, it was observed that:

- 1) Of the returned devices that showed no visible, external evidence of abuse, 2.3% had removable contamination.
- 2) Of those devices which showed visible external evidence of abuse, 33.8% had removable contamination.

This suggests that abuse was a key contributing factor to the cause of device failure.

7. 3M has undertaken a careful and conservative re-entry program for its entire line of Po-210 static elimination devices. The initial focus of that program has been research and development of bar type devices with process improvements and strengthened quality controls. 3M has made meaningful progress in its development effort and is currently reviewing information from bars manufactured and tested in accordance with the re-entry program. Upon a determination by 3M that the information supports the technical standards we have set for the bar type device and is consistent with 3M's business plan, 3M will then seek authorization to distribute Po-210 static eliminators to specific licensees and/or general licensees.

Relief From Order

This report provides the information requested by the NRC. As stated in 3M's letters dated August 14 and September 15, 1989, there appears to be no useful purpose in continuing to provide the NRC with the monthly status reports required by the February 18, 1988 Order. No material changes are expected in those reports. Therefore, it is anticipated that upon receipt of this comprehensive report, relief from that requirement will be granted as stated in the NRC's September 28, 1989 letter.

Mr. A.B. Davis
U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission

Sincerely,

Russell J. McNaughton
