Subject: Conversation with [redacted]

For completeness, I wanted you to know that [redacted] told me last week that [redacted] suffered some health effects that were consistent with exposure to NO2. The interesting thing, however, was that the only time [redacted] could have been exposed was after the all clear was given, at which time [redacted] spent a lot of time in the Control Room and offices of the old NFB. [redacted] told me that [redacted] could smell a little NO2 when [redacted] reentered the NFB, but [redacted] did not think much of it. [redacted] had a scratchy throat the next day, but [redacted] figured it was the onset of a cold. By Friday, when [redacted] was driving to Tulsa to catch [redacted] flight, [redacted] eyes were tearing up so much [redacted] had tears coming down [redacted] cheeks. Also, [redacted] became congested and had trouble keeping up with [redacted] runny nose. Later, after [redacted] got home [redacted] experienced several days of bloody mucus. [redacted] went to the doctor and the doctor told [redacted] symptoms were consistent with that type of exposure.

[redacted] told me [redacted] told Lantz when [redacted] got out to this week.
