IE INFORMATION NOTICE NO. 82-30: LOSS OF THERMAL SLEEVES IN REACTOR COOLANT SYSTEM PIPING AT CERTAIN WESTINGHOUSE PWR POWER PLANTS

Addressees:

All nuclear power reactor facilities holding an operating license (OL) or construction permit (CP) and applicants for operating license (NTOL).

Purpose:

This information notice is to provide further notification regarding the continuance of thermal sleeve failures in both pressurized and boiling water reactor (PWR and BWR) plants. The potential safety significance of this problem is still under review by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC) staff. If NRC evaluation so indicates, further licensee action may be requested. In the interim, the staff expects licensees to review the information herein for applicability to their facilities. No specific action or response is required at this time.

Description of Circumstances:

Past operating experience has identified fatigue failure problems associated with nozzle-thermal sleeve assemblies in piping systems of both BWR and PWR plant designs.¹ Similar fatigue failure problems have occurred more recently in certain PWR plants designed by Babcock & Wilcox and are described in IE Information Notice No. 82-09, dated March 31, 1982.

On June 9, 1982, NRC was notified by Portland General Electric (PGE) that a steel sheet about 7" x 15" x 1/8" thick, with torn edges, was discovered in the bottom plenum of the Trojan reactor vessel during an underwater television inspection of in-reactor fuel conditions. Further inspection revealed another metal piece lodged between the lower core plate and core support plate. The pieces appeared to be parts of thermal sleeves initially installed in the safety injection accumulator piping nozzle connections to the reactor coolant system (RCS) cold leg piping. Radiography and ultrasonic examination further confirmed the 10-inch thermal sleeves were missing from all four safety injection (SI) piping nozzle connections.

The thermal sleeves consist of straight cylindrical sections. Two retainer welds about 5/8- to 3/4-inch in length, located 180° apart, attach the sleeve to the SI nozzle inlet. Four nozzle button welds and a raised, integral machined ring on the thermal sleeve provide axial alignment of the sleeve at the nozzle-to-RCS interface.

¹NEDO-21821, 1978; NEDO-9693, 1980; WCAP-7477, 1980; NUREG-0691, 1980.

Based on the above results, the nozzle-thermal sleeve assemblies of similar design were examined with the following results. A crack indication was found in one of the two retainer welds of the 14-inch sleeve in the pressurizer surge line to RCS hot leg connection. A slight indication was found in a retainer weld on one of the two 3-inch thermal sleeves in the normal and alternate charging lines.

Plans are being developed by PGE for recovery of the thermal sleeve components from the vessel and analysis of the failure mechanism. PGE and Westinghouse are currently evaluating the need for replacement sleeves that have failed or those that may be removed because of potential failure.

Duke Power Company also notified NRC that a radiography examination and underwater camera inspection on July 4 and 5 respectively, indicated the thermal sleeve in one of the four SI accumulator piping nozzles to RCS cool leg piping (i.e., Loop B) in McGuire Unit 1 was missing. Radiography confirmed the sleeves in Loops A, C, and D, as well as the pressurizer surge line to RCS hot leg piping, to be in place. However, conditions of all the retainer welds in the affected systems remain to be established. The licensee is continuing inspection efforts to locate the missing thermal sleeve.

Westinghouse has notified its PWR customers of affected operating and nonoperating plants with regard to the thermal sleeve problem. For the operating plants, Westinghouse has recommended that (1) the loose parts monitoring system be fully operational and (2) a nondestructive examination be performed to assess thermal sleeve conditions of affected systems at the next extended plant outage. Implementation of these measures would appear prudent until this matter can be fully resolved.

If you have any questions regarding this matter, please contact the Regional Administrator of the appropriate NRC Regional Office, or this office.
