Dear Chairman Selin,

I think it is important that we protect the environment, not only in small minority communities, but everywhere. It is environmental racism, to pollute poverty stricken areas simply because they are poverty stricken with minorities living there. You should have some compassion. Try putting yourself in their place. With all of the other things these people have to do with, this just adds to their problems. You're probably thinking, "Well, it's not my problem," but it is. You never know, all of waste you're dumping in the area just might spread to where you're living. It's everyone's problem.

Staci Gordon
